

The US Navy researches, develops, and fields advanced real-time high resolution sensor and processing systems that acquire, disseminate, and exploit imagery obtained from platforms operating under water, on the water, on the ground, in the air, and in space.